Descriptive writing

Creates a clear picture in the reader's mind

The crocodile twisted and turned, snapping at me as I clung desperately on. At one point I thought it was all over as the beast whipped round and slammed its mighty jaws shut. A powerful tug at my back nearly plucked me from my perch on its tail, and one for one horrible moment I expected its row of splintered teeth to slice into me. But then I realised the beast had bitten into the rucksack on my back! The enraged crocodile let go but continued to spin and spiral, leaping from the river, and then diving into its murky depths. Somehow I managed to hold on and crawl up its gnarled back, gripping its scaly body with my hands and knees like a bucking bronco rider.
